Dixon Defeated By Old Rivals In Big Turkey Day Contest At Sterling

Sterling high football team slipped one over on the dopsters by showing greater improvement than Dixon since their early tie game in this city and easily defeated Dixon, 19 to 7, at Sterling yesterday. The holiday game drew a big crowd, as the Sterling students staged a parade similar to that engineered by the Dixon boosters at the time of the big game in this city, and although there were many Dixon rooters present the parade served to draw out a bunch of Sterling cheer-makers who completely overshadowed the Dixon delegation.

The Dixon boys were not in the best of condition, as Saturday's game at Rochelle had left some of them not entirely fit for a struggle of such importance as the Turkey day game and in addition the local boys were somewhat over-confident.

When this over-confidence had been taken out of them in the first three periods, during which Sterling made all of her scores, the Dixon lads "came to," displayed their real shiftiness and speed and played Sterling off her feet. The teams lined up:

Dixon	Sterling
Schrock	re Gebhardt
Whitcombe	rt McCormick
Gardner	fg Kohr
Dixon	c Heau
worsley	lt Over
Shaw	le Zeigler
vaughan	qb Duhm
Schuler	lhb Schultz
Brooks	rhb Harben
Bartholomew	fb Stockle

Los Angeles, Dec. 1.—Before a crowd of 30,000 Eddie Rickenbacher won the championship award sweepstake of 150 miles at Ascot Speedway in two hours, 13 minutes, one second; Earl Cooper was second, coasting around the last lap with his gasoline tank empty. ## WONDERFUL FILM PRODUCTION COMING

Sunday Evening For Return Date

David W. Griffith's masterpiece woman and child should be interesting film production, "The Birth of a Nation," played to capacity houses at all four of its performances Wednesday and Thursday, matinee and night, at the opera house, and no picture has ever been shown in this city to be compared with this wonderful production. Big crowds from all of the surrounding towns were in attendance and at last night's show the entire house was sold out at 6 o'clock, many being unable to gain admission.

The story of the picture is intensely interesting and depicts just what the name implies, the birth of a nation. It is a story in which every man, woman and child should be interested. The spectacle is produced in such magnitude that the spectators are spellbound during its presentation, as they are carried from scene to scene depicting 150 years of American history, with 18,000 people as actors, 3,000 riders and horses as the cavalry and 5,000 scenes. Return Date Sunday. Because over 300 people were turned away from last night's production, while many more have expressed a desire to see the wonderful picture again, Managers Rorer and Eastman have secured a return date for the picture for Sunday night.

CAPTAIN OF GERMAN SUBSEA BOAT SAYS HE THOUGHT SHIP WAS TRANSPORT

GROUND FOR THIS BELIEF

Was Reported In London That the Marina Carried Gun and Two Gunners.

WAS REPORTED IN LONDON THAT THE MARINA CARRIED GUN AND TWO GUNNERS.

(Associated Press)
Washington, Dec. 1.—The commander of the German submarine which sank the British horse ship Marina, with the loss of six Americans, has reported to his vessel that he mistook the vessel for a transport. Germany has asked the United States for the status of the vessel, and is ready to offer amends if the Marina was entitled to immunity.

The case was discussed today at a conference between Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and Secretary Lansing, the meeting being sought by the former. It developed at the conference that neither appeared to be in possession of such information as seems to be essential to a determination of the case.

It has been stated in London that there is ground for believing the Marina had previously been engaged in the British transport service and also that she carried a gun and two British gunners when sunk.

FELL FROM LOFT; HURT; THEN WELL

How a Man Who Landed on Wood Pile and Was Sore From Head to Foot Found Quick Relief.

Once upon a time Edwin Putnam, who lives in the quiet, pretty hamlet of Wendel Depot, Mass., climbed up into a loft to get some building material, just as many another man living in the country must often do. Suddenly he slipped and fell. Ten feet below was a pile of wood, knotted and gnarled. It was a nasty tumble and Mr. Putnam was injured painfully in the back, he was covered with bruises and was sore from head to foot.

The next day he bought a bottle of Sloan's Liniment which had been recommended to him. Within a very few hours the soreness had vanished and the lameness had disappeared. He was an active man once more.

Sloan's Liniment can be obtained at all drug stores, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

The men who had some forged checks cashed in Harmon, has not been heard from since he had them cashed.

W. E. Hopkins of Hamilton was a caller in Harmon Saturday.

Corn husking is done now; they have begun to shell and draw to market; the quality seems very fine when we look at it on the wagon as they bring it in to market, but they say that the quantity is short; it does not average over 30 bushels per acre.

Pastures are very fine for the time of the year; they look green and the grass is of good length and the cattle look in fine order; good for beef.

John Hicks of Hamilton was a caller in Harmon Saturday.

Wm. Hill was a caller in Harmon on Saturday evening.

Mr. Andrews, who works at the farmers elevator, went to his home in Walnut Saturday evening; he will return on Monday morning to be at his work.

Many people in and around Harmon are having bad colds and some become very hoarse and have sore throats. The grip has been about, some are having it.

Samuel Manning has been trying to buy up a lot of turkeys for Thanksgiving; he wants to ship them as early as he can to get them on the market.

There are a few empty houses in Harmon at present, they may not be empty long, as some are changing about all of the time.

Chicken thieves have been at work in and around Harmon; Timothy Dumphy said that he had about 30 stolen in one night from his hen coop; others have had them taken.

There was a large congregation of Lutherans at the M. E. church last Monday afternoon.

Last Saturday there were many wearing tags.

Clarence Durr having rented his farm will sell at public auction his farm machinery and stock.

Dick Johnson has rented a farm in Marion for the coming year; he will move about the first of March. A number of other renters will change places in the spring.

The mail carriers, who had been going out in their autos, had had luck, they broke their tires and were obliged to buy new ones.

Visitors were at the Geo. E. Ross home last week from Sterling.

The wedding was solemnized by Dr. F. D. Altman of St. Paul's Lutheran church at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Myers, Thursday evening. Over fifty guests were present to witness the happy event.

A ceremony bower in green and white, of ferns and festoons and wedding bells, had been arranged in the parlor of the residence. Roses and smilax were also used.

A dainty gown of white silk and lace formed the bridal attire, while the matron of honor, Mrs. Edward Myers, wore a maise colored silk. Thanksgiving morning at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's Catholic church the wedding of Miss Katherine Hannan of this city, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Hannan, and Thomas Shean, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shean of Ohio Station, was solemnized by the Rev. Michael Foley, Miss Bresnahan as organist and Mr. John Burke as vocalist rendered the nuptial music, the former playing the wedding march.

Miss Charlotte Shean, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and the bride's brother, William Hannan, acted as best man. The bride was very attractively appareled in a brown broadcloth suit, and carried a white prayerbook. Miss Shean wore a suit of one of the new purple shades.

A dinner was served later at the home of the Misses Hannan, 920 W. Ninth street. The decorations of the home were in pink and white. Smilax and carnations formed the table decorations. There were eighteen guests at the dinner.

25 CENTS DESTROYS YOUR DANDRUFF AND STOPS FALLING HAIR

Save your hair! Make it thick, wavy and beautiful—try this Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few week's use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

One of those ample, warm-looking garments classed as driving coats (which is a fetching name for a utility coat) is pictured above. It is made of made-colored Bolivia cloth and cut in loose, flowing lines. The wide, turned-over collar is described by the manufacturers as a "hood collar," and there seems quite enough of it to convert into a head covering. The coat is long and does not depart from those rules of the season which decree a straight front, clever cut and comfort in all coats of this character.

Smoky Achill

One of the smokiest places on earth is undoubtedly Achill, of the coast of Mayo, Ireland. A smoky atmosphere is not an unknown thing in any Irish cabin, but in Achill the greater smoke the higher the satisfaction of the natives, for there smoke means potatoes, and potatoes mean food. It is to one of the methods of procuring soot that the islander owes the smoky condition of his cabin. Soot he must have, or the potatoes will not grow. In the tiled fields he erects little huts called scawhogues, formed by straw or sod of heather from the mountains. Within these huts he keeps a fire of peat burning for six weeks or two months at the end of which period the scaws are, from their continual impregnation with smoke, transformed into soot. Turf or peat is abundant on the island, and the large fires cost nothing.

A REMEDY FOR THE CAR SHORTAGE.

Under pressure of necessity, the railroads are coming forward with practical suggestions for the relief of the serious car shortage. A spokesman for the railroads gave the Illinois Public Utilities commission yesterday one explanation for the shortage and suggested one important remedial measure. His suggestion was that the demurrage charges be raised, says the Chicago Daily News.

Shippers are now allowed to retain cars two days for unloading without extra charge. After the expiration of two days, however, each shipper must pay the railroad a demurrage charge of $1 a day for each car. The revenue collected by the railroads of the United States on account of demurrage during the last fiscal year was $9,657,235. That is to say, during the year 9,657,235 cars in effect were retained three days by shippers before they were unloaded.

The difference between prompt and tardy release of cars is serious. When cars are scarce because of heavy shipment demands two days ought to afford ample time for their unloading. According to the calculations of an expert, an average of 32,000 cars a day would have been relieved from demurrage for actual transportation use in the last fiscal year if no shipper had retained a car for a longer period than two days.

The railroads generally have filed with the Interstate Commerce commission requests for new demurrage rates to begin early in December. Under the proposed rates the charge would be $2 a car for the first day after the lapse of 48 hours, $3 for the second day, $4 for the third day and $5 for the fourth and each succeeding day. The Illinois Public Utilities commission is asked to authorize similar demurrage rates on cars making hauls within the boundaries of this state.

Some years ago California raised the demurrage charge on business within that state from $1 a day to $6 a day. The effect was to reduce the annual earnings of the railroads on account of demurrage resulting from interstate shipments from $611,345 to $280,463. Therefore the experience of California demonstrates that the effect of a high demurrage charge is to prevent cars from being held out of shipping service for unnecessarily long periods.

The public is interested in having the freight cars of all the railroads kept steadily in operation. Consequently it should approve of a system of demurrage charges that would discourage the practice of keeping loaded cars waiting on side tracks for unreasonably long periods.

THE ART OF GROWING OLDER.

If Shakespeare had been acquainted with Chauncey M. Depew he would have allowed for exceptions when he wrote of the seven ages of man. In years Senator Depew is long past the sixth age, the "lean and slippered pantaloon" period; he is even past the seventh age and the description "sans teeth, sans taste, sans eyes" does not fit him at all. Shakespeare, who died at 52, supposing himself to be old, agreed with David that three score years and ten were the limit of life, but the invincible Mr. Depew at 83 declares that David was all wrong and certainly in his own person he at least proves that there are remarkable exceptions. Senator Depew did not deliver his recent lecture in New York on "The Art of Growing Old" from a rolling chair or in the piping voice of aged senility. On the contrary he walked jauntily out on the platform "a slim-waisted young fellow in evening clothes," and spoke in a resonant voice that carried to the curb. In part he said:

"Seventy-five years ago when I was seven and a half years old, I remember that our village had any number of old men and old women. They advertised their age. At sixty the women donned caps, one sort of cap during the day and another at night. Men past seventy lay around house or indolently sat on a nail keg at the grocery store. We haven't got that sort of people nowadays. Today you can't tell a mother from her daughter because of the way they dress, and you'd have a hard time finding a statesman sitting on a nail keg. Everything helps old age now. There is the telephone. A man can 'get' his office, his club or he can listen to a sermon, an opera or a speech without leaving his home. The cable, the wireless connect a far-spread world and so help to keep alive mental activity."

Young old Depew is right. There is vastly more now than formerly to keep men and women active, interested, mentally alert—and therefore, comparatively young far along in life. There is no good reason why average man who does not worry, who continues to be interested, who insists on activity, and who has the gift of cheerfulness, may live long and keep going until he drops more or less suddenly—which is much the better way of winding up one's mortal span, whether it be long or short. No folly in life is greater than that of "giving up" after a certain age and waiting dreadingly for dissolution. The wise old man knows how to be spry without over-exertion.

NATIONAL DUTY TO ECONOMIZE.

As a general rule thrift is practiced more among business firms, in offices and factories than in the private home and by the individual. Many a man is thrifty in business but wasteful in personal affairs.

In this country we waste $25,000,000 a year, so statisticians tell us, because we have failed to adopt the potato drying process used successfully in Germany. By failing to adopt this means of preserving the crop, potatoes rot unnecessarily. In Germany also the leaves of potatoes and other plants are utilized, and it is estimated that our failure to do this costs us $12,000,000. We waste $93,000,000 a year in losses of live stock due to diseases such as Texas fever, tuberculosis, scabies and cholera. We waste $100,000,000 annually in losses to crops and live stock by rats, mice, wolves and other similar pests. We waste the prodigious sum of $267,000,000 a year through the attack of flies, ticks and other similar pests. This, of course, does not include the loss to human life due to mosquitoes, flies, fleas and other insects. Thus we see how the losses in little things, considered from a national standpoint, are most serious.

It is the duty of every citizen to his nation and to himself to economize and practice thrift wherever possible.

It will be something to be thankful for when the papers quit wasting valuable white space in telling the story of Mary Smith and why she left Uncle Jimmy and Aunt Louisa Pankhurst.

ROUMANIANS TO DEFEND CAPITOL

Civil Population of Bucharest Ordered to Flee.

TEUTONS 12 1-2 MILES AWAY

Town of Comona, Half Way Between Giurgu and Bucharest, Is Captured. Falkenhayn's Army Also Has Captured Campulung—Three Rivers Between Teutons and Foes.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—Bucharest, the Roumanian capital, is changing into a war camp, the Over-Seas News agency learns. Half of the civil population, according to a dispatch to the Berliner Bund, already has left the capital.

The Lokal Anzeiger publishes a telegram from Stockholm that the chief of police of Bucharest and General Berthelot, the French strategist, with the Russian army, have ordered the majority of the population, especially women and children, to leave the precincts of Bucharest within five days. All remaining persons are engaged in military and sanitary duty.

Martial law prevails, the military authorities distributing all food.

Comona Falls to Teutons. The town of Comona (Tzomona), half way between Giurgu and Bucharest, situated on the direct railway connecting the two cities, at a point sixteen miles to the south of the capital, has fallen into Teuton hands. It lies only twelve and a half miles south of Bucharest's outer ring fortifications. Its loss is admitted by the Russian war office. As the statement covers Wednesday's operations, it is safe to assume that the forces of Field Marshal von Mackensen advancing on Bucharest from the south have made considerable further headway. The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger's information that the civil population of Bucharest is given five days to leave the fortress indicates that the capital will be defended. The numerical strength of the defenders is a matter of guesswork, but it is more than probable that whatever the Roumanians could save in artillery and ammunition in their recent reverses on all fronts has been accumulated in the capital for a defense to the finish.

Three rivers remain to the Roumanians to entrench themselves and retard the Teuton tide; the Glavatiec, Niaslov and Arges, twenty-one, twelve and eight miles, respectively, from Bucharest. Between the Arges and the outer forts is a rivulet, about five miles from the capital. The Glavatiec position already has been outflanked, for Comona, now in Teuton hands, lies five miles to the northeast of that river.

Meanwhile General von Falkenhayn's army, sweeping down in the direction of Bucharest from the northwest, is continuing its headlong advance. Campulung, the important railway city not far south from the Transylvanian foothills, has been captured, Berlin announced. Here is a strong Roumanian force which has been battling for weeks against staggering odds, eliciting repeated praise in the German official reports. Its fall opens the Torzburg pass to fresh Teuton reinforcements and adds to the menace facing the Roumanian troops still fighting stubbornly in the Prahova and Bucezu valleys.

Altogether the combined forces of Falkenhayn and Mackensen took in the last twenty-four hours 5,000 prisoners. This small total strengthens the theory that on the whole the Roumanians are managing to make good their retreat before the huge Teuton flanking movements can fulfill their chief mission, which is to trap large defending forces.

SAN DOMINGO IS SEIZED BY U. S.

Martial Law Results from "Deplorable Conditions."

DANIELS ISSUES STATEMENT

Captain Harry F. Knapp, Commander U. S. Fleet at Island to Establish a Military Government—Previous Measures Had Proved Inadequate to Remedy Conditions.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The United States has proclaimed martial law over the republic of Santo Domingo, Secretary of the Navy Daniels announces. Captain Harry F. Knapp, commander of the cruiser squadron now in Dominican waters, has been empowered to establish a military government over the republic. He will not have the powers of military governor, it was stated.

Secretary Daniels explained that the action was necessary because of "deplorable conditions" throughout Santo Domingo. The United States has exercised a fiscal protectorate over the Dominican government for some years but has proved inadequate to meet the increasingly bad economic and political condition there.

Navy Department Statement. The navy department made the following announcement:

Captain H. S. Knapp, in command of the United States forces in San Domingo, reports that in compliance with instructions received military government was proclaimed by him in San Domingo 4 p. m. November 29.

An order regarding carrying arms or having them in possession has been in effect. Payment of salaries of government officials will be resumed immediately.

DIXON OPERA HOUSE

Believing that the vice play, the problem play and the society drama have had their day, George Kilm, producer of as many if not more plays that have been successes with the popular priced theatre patrons than any other single producer, has staged "The Millionaire's Son and the Shop Girl," a brand new melodrama that will be seen for the first time locally at the Dixon opera house Saturday, matinee and night.

The story of the play has to do with Katie Hogan, a shop girl who loves and is loved by the son of a millionaire merchant prince. The father of the boy opposes his marriage to the shop girl because of her position in life. How this opposition is overcome is told in a manner that moves the audience from laughs to tears.

In the staging of the play Mr. Kilm has brought his many years of experience as a theatrical producer to bear. He has furnished the play with a cast that is said to be especially capable and to have given the play a production that is adequate in every respect.

The Quarterbreed

BY
BENNET

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—At the edge of the Lakota Indian reservation a rider by strategy rescues a quarterbreed girl and two men from an Indian attack.

CHAPTER II—The rider is Capt. Floyd Hardy, U. S. army, new Indian agent, the rescued, Regina Vandervyn, nephew of U. S. Senator Clemmer and agency clerk, Jacques Dupont, post trader and his daughter, Marie.

CHAPTER III—Vandervyn tells Hardy of disaffection among the Indians, of the murder of Noren, the last agent, and of his having been promised the agency. Hardy calls a council of chiefs at the agency. Redbear, the halfbreed interpreter, brings his sister to the valley.

CHAPTER IV—Dupont and Vandervyn find Hardy unyielding when they propose to share profits in a mine they are illegally working on the reservation.

CHAPTER V—Vandervyn primes Redbear to wrongly interpret Hardy's talk to the Indians and makes love to Redbear's sister, Olna.

CHAPTER VI—The chiefs become angry at what they are told Hardy says and leave the council.

CHAPTER VII—Vandervyn persuades Olna into what he calls a "common law" marriage and further incenses Redbear against Hardy.

CHAPTER VIII—Hardy is shot from ambush. Marie dresses his wound.

CHAPTER IX—Marie coquettes with Vandervyn and Hardy.

CHAPTER X—Hardy wounds an Indian who shoots at him, and sets lost in the mountains trailing the man.

CHAPTER XI—He blunders into the camp of Ti-owa-konza and through Olna's interpretation clears up the misunderstanding and calls another council at the mine, the source of all the trouble.

CHAPTER XII—Hardy reproves Vandervyn and Dupont for lying to him. Marie accuses him of self-righteous, priggish unfairness.

CHAPTER XIII—In the mine Dupont saves Hardy's life, but regrets it. Hardy agrees not to mention the mine in his report if the two men will play fair about it as they propose to do.

CHAPTER XIV.

In White and Black.

In the morning Olna did not show herself outside the cabin, though Hardy called a kindly good morning to her. Her brother, with one arm carefully bandaged and in a sling, brought out the breakfast that she cooked. He looked so weak and unsteady that Hardy at once assented when he mumbled that he wished to go back to bed and rest until the council.

"You must have your wits about you this time," added Hardy. "Whatever the cause of the misunderstanding at the first council, it must not recur. You are too careless in your interpretations. Inform your sister that she is to be present. I shall require her to check you."

"Would you make a girl as shy as she is stand up in a tribal council and interpret?" remonstrated Vandervyn, as Redbear slunk around the end of the cabin.

"The presence of her grandfather will give her courage," replied Hardy. "It is necessary that she should be present. I do not trust either the ability or the honesty of her brother."

Vandervyn shrugged, and said no more. Half an hour or so later he asked permission to use Hardy's pen and pad to write some letters. The captain handed them to him, and started up the mountainside above the tunnel mouth. A steep path led up to the top of the spur ridge from which the shaft had been sunk from the apex of the outcrop of the vein.

As soon as he had gone beyond earshot, Vandervyn rose to stretch himself and call softly through the nearest loophole. He then seated himself on his saddle and began to write. A listener would have had need to be near at hand to have heard the low murmur of Redbear's and Olna's voices through the loophole above Vandervyn's head.

When Hardy returned from his examination of the upper works of the mine, Vandervyn sealed in his presence the two letters that he had written. They appeared decidedly thin, in view of the time that Vandervyn had spent in his writing and the number of sheets or paper gone from the pad. But Hardy did not observe this. His attention had been diverted by a large party of Indians that had appeared on the velvety green meadows of the valley bottom.

The tribal council had begun to assemble. This time the chiefs and headmen did not come alone. From far camps as well as near, the men of the tribe were bringing their families to see the Longknife chief whom they had first hated but now believed to be their friend and father. By noon their numbers had grown from scores to hundreds.

Shortly after the midday meal one of the Indian policemen brought word up to the cabin that the head chief had arrived and the council was ready to talk with the agent. Hardy at once gave command to mount. As soon as Hardy and Vandervyn started to ride down the slope, Olna slipped out, and held her brother's pony for him. She then mounted her own, and rode after him.

At the foot of the slope the riders came out through a grove of young, quaking aspens into sudden view of the picturesque and imposing tribal council. Fully half the tribe had gathered together for the occasion. All up and down the valley the meadows were dotted with their ponies. The Indians were assembled in a dense crowd—the men in a deep band around the chiefs, the women and children outside.

Hardy was greeted with a murmur of welcome and admiration, and the crowd made a path through their midst to the inner ring of the chiefs. Followed by Redbear, Vandervyn and Olna, he walked along the passage between the living walls of silent, furtive-eyed Indians, and seated himself on the blanket that had been spread for him beside old Ti-owa-konza. Shortly before the start down into the valley Vandervyn had again borrowed his superior's writing pad and fountain pen. He now sat down at Hardy's shoulder, with the pad and pen ready.

After a ceremonious silence the head chief's orator announced the purpose of the council. This was followed by declamations from three orators, whose main purpose seemed to be to give an exhibition of their ability in painting word pictures. When they had finished, Ti-owa-konza arose, and warmed the hearts of his people with an impassioned eulogy of their new friend, the chief of the Longknives, who had come to be a father to the tribe.

Hardy then explained the good that had resulted on other reservations from the taking of land in severalty, and advised that the council name a delegation of chiefs to go at once to Washington and ask for the confirmation of the new treaty. More than once during Redbear's interpretation of the acting agent's statements Olna betrayed surprise. Ti-owa-konza noticed this sooner than Hardy. He spoke to his granddaughter. The girl cast a timid look at Vandervyn and hesitated.

Her brother smiled cunningly and said: "It's all right. Tell him."

"What's that?" queried Hardy.

"Nothing—nothing, sir," quavered the girl. "Only, Charlie—he added something to what you said."

"I put in that you and Mr. Van would try to get them big pay for the mineral lands," boldly explained Redbear.

"Surely you've no objection to that, captain," remarked Vandervyn.

"Was that all?" Hardy asked the girl.

"Yes, sir. He only—"

"Very well. I have no objection to the statement. But I now must decidedly insist upon an exact interpretation of what I say. Miss Redbear, you will tell me at once if your brother either fails to interpret what I tell him or makes any additions—"

"Yes, sir, if—" faltered Olna. Her covert glance of appeal met with a reassuring smile from Vandervyn. She ventured to look up at Hardy, and her voice became steadier: "Yes, sir, of course. Only Charlie was just trying to help, and he won't do it again."

Hardy resumed his explanations and advice. When he had finished, several more orators had to exhibit their eloquence. The council then proceeded to accept the acting agent's advice and name a delegation. As Ti-owa-konza insisted that he was too old to venture so long a journey among the white men, five of the younger sub-chiefs and headmen were chosen to represent the tribe.

During the closing ceremonies of the council Vandervyn leaned forward beside Hardy, and showed him an abbreviated but accurate memorandum of the proceedings.

"It's as well to have these things in black and white," he suggested. "We could get the chiefs to sign this before the council breaks up."

"Very good. A record may be valuable for future reference," agreed Hardy.

He rapidly read the writing, interpolated a few words, added a line, and gave it to Redbear to interpret. When the council acknowledged the accuracy of the memorandum, Hardy signed it, and asked the chiefs to add their marks, with Redbear and Olna acting as witnesses. At this Vandervyn volunteered to serve as penman, and officially ordered Redbear to bring the chiefs over to a nearby boulder, where they could more conveniently make their marks on the paper.

Hardy offered no objection to this. The council had finished its work, and there was nothing suspicious about Vandervyn's suggestion that the boulder would afford an easy place for the chiefs to sign. He rose and returned to his mare, while the crowd flocked off to the boulder after their chiefs. He did not see Vandervyn lay out two papers on the top of the rock, nor did he hear the smooth explanation that the agent wanted the chiefs to sign two copies of the memorandum. This statement was unhesitatingly interpreted by Redbear, and the chiefs, who knew by experience that most agency papers were signed in duplicate, made their crosses and thumb-prints as fast as Vandervyn wrote their names on the two papers.

Olna ventured to whisper to her brother that the papers did not look alike. He hastily repeated the remark to Vandervyn. The girl cringed close to her grandfather. But Vandervyn showed no anger. He smiled at her in a manner that brought a blissful glow into her soft eyes, and explained that one paper gave the proceedings of the council in full, while the other consisted of brief notes. He then murmured to her something that at first brought a shadow into her joyous face, but in the end left her radiant with happiness.

When the leading men of the tribe had signed the papers and Redbear and Olna had attested as witnesses, Vandervyn thrust the documents into his pocket and went to rejoin Hardy. As he handed over the paper that Hardy had signed, he remarked that, if there was no objection, Redbear and his sister would remain in the mountains with their grandfather until word should be received from the government for the tribal delegation to come on to Washington.

"You are ready to return to the agency with me?" asked Hardy.

"We can start at once, if you wish," assented Vandervyn.

"Very well," said Hardy. "The girl shall remain here, and you will come with me."

Still doubtful of his companion, Hardy took the ponies of Redbear and Olna in hand, and rode over to where the brother and sister stood in the midst of their grandfather's immediate family. When the girl confirmed Vandervyn's statement that she wished to remain in the mountains, he took ceremonious leave of the noble old chief, and rode off to rejoin his party.

During the brief interval Vandervyn's gay humor had disappeared. He met Hardy with a frown, and held out one of the letters that he had written that morning. Seeing that it was addressed to himself, Hardy tore open the envelope and read the brief note within.

"So," he said, fixing the younger man with a level glance, "your resignation—to take effect at once. It is dated yesterday."

"It would have been dated and presented a week ago if I'd had the slightest idea you were going to insult me as you did yesterday," Vandervyn burst out angrily. "You'd have had it on the spot if I could have brought myself to borrow your pen and paper."

"I see," said Hardy. He reflected a moment, and remarked: "There seems to be no reason why I should not accept your resignation, if you insist upon my acting on it."

"I've Had Enough of Your Bullying."

"I do," said Vandervyn. "I've had enough of your bullying. I'm a free man now—not your clerk."

"You will change your tone, sir, if you wish to ride in my company," said Hardy, with a cool self-control that checked the other's anger.

"God! if only you weren't such a self-righteous prig!" exclaimed the younger man. "You're so sure you can show cards and spades to the angels! I'm out for the good things of life, and I make no bones over it. But that doesn't prevent me from being a blooming benefactor as well. If you wish to know the real reason why I'm resigning, it's because I have planned to go on to Washington with the delegation, and pull wires to get the tribe a big slice of graft for their mineral lands."

Hardy saw the frank sincerity in his companion's eyes, and responded to the assertion with an instant apology: "Mr. Vandervyn, I beg your pardon for misjudging you. At times your conduct has been ill-advised, but I no longer doubt your good intentions."

"It takes an officer and gentleman to eat crow as if it were quail!" rallied Vandervyn with seemingly genial sarcasm. "Do I understand that my resignation is accepted?"

"If you insist."

"I do. Now that is settled. We make the return trip as equals," said Vandervyn, and, as if freed from all rancor by the thought, he fell into a mood of suave gaiety.

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your bladder troubles you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water seals and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

VILLISTAS LOOT CHIHUAHUA CITY

Carrancistas Concentrating for New Assault.

DIVIDED FORCES ASSEMBLING

Seven Hundred Constitutionalists and Refugees Reach Juarez from Scene of Bandit Orgy—Are Members of Cavalry Division—Villistas Fire into Train—Foreigners Flee.

Juarez, Mex., Dec. 1.—Seven hundred Carrancistas troops, survivors of the battle of Chihuahua, with twenty-five pieces of artillery, arrived here shortly before noon.

The troops were a part of Ozuna's cavalry, who escaped on four trains last Monday, after the order to evacuate had been given.

General Trevino's command started their retreat to the south, the surviving Carrancistas said. The fate of the survivors and other foreigners in Chihuahua is unknown.

The wounded were also brought north to the border at the same time. Hospital supplies were hurried to the improvised Red Cross car and Mexican physicians were in attendance on the wounded.

Make Up Relief Train.

A train is being made up in the Juarez yards to go south. It is expected to bring additional refugees and wounded soldiers to the border here.

Refugees from Chihuahua City, who arrived here, reported looting by bandits when they left Monday morning. They said it had been reported to them and that two large foreign dry goods stores had been looted by Villa bandits. They also asserted that bandits had fired into the train in which they were leaving the city.

General Gonzales at military headquarters said he had received a report from Carranza officials that General Murguía was at Morositas, south of Chihuahua City, and was advancing rapidly toward the city. He added that General Ozuna had reached Nombro de Dios, a small settlement northwest of the city, and was re-engaging the bandits.

Two Generals Wounded. Included among the wounded brought to Juarez were Colonel Borquez and Colonel Mallos, both of General Ozuna's cavalry column, who were wounded during the fighting in Chihuahua City.

General Gonzales met the column which accompanied the train bearing the wounded to Juarez.

It was reported by a Carranza officer that Carranza forces still are in possession of the penitentiary at Chihuahua City awaiting help after the juncture of Generals Trevino and Murguía.

CRYING FOR HELP

LOTS OF IT IN DIXON BUT DAILY GROWING LESS

The kidneys often cry for help. Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed: Not one more important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood. When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where here is poisoned blood. Backache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble.

It is often the kidneys cry for help. Head it.

Read what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for overworked kidneys. "What what Doans' have done for Dixon people."

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to keep her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle.
It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Must Yield Road to Autos.
BELVIDERE, ILL., Dec. 1.
A horse-drawn vehicle must be turned aside by its driver when an automobile, coming up from the rear, desires to pass, according to the verdict of a jury in the case of Mrs. Florence Reid, Chemung, against Lent Stevens, Harvard. Mrs. Reid sued for $5,000 damages for personal injuries caused, she claimed, by Stevens driving his auto into plaintiff's buggy.
